

National Clinical Audit of Psychosis

This team is taking part in the National Clinical Audit of Psychosis to help improve the care people with Psychosis receive. In 2019 we will be collecting information about the care received by people in Early Intervention in Psychosis (EIP) services.

What does the audit do?

We collect data from services to see whether people receiving care, their family members, friends and carers receive consistent and high quality care throughout the country. This year we're also carrying out a survey of people treated in EIP services. The results help Trusts understand more about the care they are providing, how it compares to national standards and how they could improve it for people who will use the service in the future.

What information is used?

We use information collected as part of routine care. This includes your NHS number, date of birth and postcode and information about the care you received (such as what medication you were prescribed or what therapy you were offered). We do not collect names or full addresses.

Who collects the information?

The information is collected by staff at the Trust, this may include the doctors and nurses who provide your care, or a team of people whose role it is to gather information in this Trust.

Information will be collected in October 2019 and submitted to NCAP in November 2019.

What happens to the information collected?

- 1) We will publish a report with the results of the audit in Summer 2020. This will show how your Trust is doing. It will also help the Government understand how EIP services are working across the country and where improvements are needed. The report provides information at a National and Trust level, so it is not possible to identify any individual in the report.
- 2) Each month Trusts submit data to NHS Digital on the care they provide to patients (routine data). We will compare the information we collect with this data. This is important as in the future we would like to move to using routine data in the audit. This will reduce the work for services of taking part and leave them more time to care for people.

How do we keep your information safe?

We take our responsibility towards safeguarding your information seriously and will ensure your data are kept confidential and secure. We have special permission to collect identifiable data (NHS number, postcode, date of birth) without asking each person for their consent. This is known as Section 251 approval and gives Trusts the legal permission to provide this information.
