Memory clinic

Why have I been referred to the memory clinic?

You, your GP or a friend, relative or carer may have noticed that your memory is getting worse than it used to be. You may also be having difficulty with daily tasks such as cooking, dressing, washing or remembering words. You have been referred to the memory clinic for an assessment in order to understand the cause of this.

There are many causes for these types of issues, including depression and dementia. We will often be able to make a diagnosis at the end of your visit. We will provide advice and offer appropriate specific treatment.

Before your appointment

Before your appointment it may be helpful to have a brain scan at your local hospital (unless you have already had one recently). We will arrange this for you and you will receive a scan appointment letter from your hospital.

We encourage you to bring a friend, relative or carer to your memory clinic appointment so that they can hear what happens during the appointment in case you have difficulty remembering all of the details.

Please bring along a list of your current medication and your reading glasses and hearing aid (if used).

What happens at your appointment?

Please arrive to your appointment in plenty of time as you may be asked to fill in some forms to give the clinicians more information on your memory difficulties.

You will then be seen by a doctor who will usually be accompanied by a nurse or psychologist.

Your appointment will usually last about one hour, during which we will talk to you and carry out some memory tests. We will ask you questions about your memory, medical background, current medication, family life, driving and how you are coping with day-to-day life. We will look at the results from any brain scans and other relevant medical information given to us by your GP.

We will discuss with you a general treatment plan that addresses your medical, social and care needs. Sometimes medication can help memory problems; sometimes people can manage better at home with a bit of advice and support. We will answer questions you may have about any aspect of your diagnosis or treatment plan and you will be given useful written information.

If appropriate, you may be referred to a local dementia advisor who can put you in touch with many of the care and support services in your local area.
