Recent Evidence from Primary Care

Interventions in primary care to increase uptake of adult vaccines: a systematic review

Clinics may increase uptake by reminding doctors to order vaccine, promoting face-to-face conversations about vaccination and instituting bundled clinic process improvements. EHR prompts may be less effective. Available on request via your Primary Care Librarian

Evaluating the Effectiveness of Primary Care Health Checks at Assessing Cardiovascular Risks among Ethnic Minorities in the UK: A Systematic Review

Recent migrants, refugees and the homeless are least likely to be invited to attend these health checks.

Need help with KLOE - Key Lines of Enquiry? Here is how I can help

“Do staff have all the information they need to deliver safe care and treatment to people?” “Is all the information needed to deliver safe care and treatment available to relevant staff in a timely and accessible way?”

Carry out clinical and non-clinical literature searches as well as current awareness emails tailored to your particular interests

“Are people’s needs assessed and care and treatment delivered in line with current legislation, standards and evidence-based guidance, including NICE and other expert professional bodies, to achieve effective outcomes?”

Keep you informed of new legislation or guidelines or offer training on how to find them for yourselves

“How does the service make sure that staff have the skills, knowledge and experience to deliver effective care, support and treatment?”

There are thousands of free clinical/ non-clinical e-modules available with via OpenAthens plus individualised training packages delivered by your Librarian

“Do staff communicate with people so that they understand their care, treatment and condition and any advice given?”

Health Literacy training teaches techniques to help all primary care staff communicate effectively with patients

“How are lessons learned and themes identified, and is action taken as a result of investigations when things go wrong?” “Are there robust systems and processes for learning, continuous improvement and innovation?” “Are there clear and effective processes for managing risks, issues and performance?”

Knowledge Mobilisation training helps you develop and use skills to mobilise knowledge effectively – to help learn before, during and after every new project so that pitfalls can be avoided and best practice replicated.
